The book with a song:
Kiri Rakete sings “Wie ich will” (“Whatever I Want”).

“A song, or rather a beat, came into my head straight away as I read and marvelled at this book. It’s a book that dances and sings: try it out!” – Kiri Rakete, songwriter

Living books sing and dance! Heut, da bin ich eine Maus by Franziska Höllbacher is just such a book. And now there’s the song “Wie ich will” (“Whatever I Want”) to go with it – written and sung by one of Austria’s best-known writers of songs for kids: Kiri Rakete! The song is available on all popular streaming platforms.

Franziska Höllbacher is an illustrator and designer. She loves Denglish, cats and too much ketchup. She studied at the university of applied sciences in Salzburg, graduating in media design in 2021. She now lives in Bavaria with her cat and her partner.

Kiri Rakete writes enchanting children’s songs with meaning, heart and soul that encourage kids to listen, sing along, dance and smile. In her songs she sings about chameleons in love, city kids in Vienna, friendship, saucepans, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Italian recycling, cheesy feet, and every animal under the sun. A feast for the ears for music lovers young and old! Kiri also runs music courses for infants in Vienna!
